Condolences to the families of an APC member and the husband of a member.

Marcia Loughner March 19 1949-May 13 2022

Marcia lost her battle with cancer this past May. She fought hard and was not ready to give up the wonderful life she had built. We spoke a few days before her passing about our planned trip to Westminster Kennel Club. Marcia was a retired EMT and an accomplished violinist with the Binghamton New York Orchestra, however her true passion was her beloved Pointers. Marcia acquired her first Pointer in the 1970's and competed successfully in Conformation, Obedience, and Field events over the years. She recently completed the AKC Bronze Championship on one of her beloved Pointers - an accomplishment she was very proud of. She will be greatly missed by all who knew and loved her.

Written by longtime friend Julie Pullan If you attended the 2022 dinner at the National Specialty Marcia made the quilted throw that was auctioned off. I was beautiful!

The husband of Dawn Bell passed away recently. Even though Daniel was not an APC member he loved the pointers. Dawn has been a member for more than ten years.

Our thoughts are with both families.

FOR WORKING DOGS AND GROWING PUPS

HUNTING is hard work and growing is hard work, too - ask any pointer or pup. Both activities require balanced nourishment. Leading kennel owners find that Wayne Dog Food always keeps up health and growth in dogs of all ages and breeds. That is because Wayne Dog Food is a highly concentrated ration, carrying 30% protein, in addition to all other vitamins, carbohydrates, and minerals required by vigorous dogs. It is complete and perfectly balanced; and dogs love it! It is made in two forms - Wayne Dog Food (Krumm) and Wayne Dog Food (Stout). Wayne Dog Food is made under the supervision of national authorities on animal feeding. Correct all feeding deficiencies in your kennels, hunting string, or individual pets by feeding it. It's the best, most economical way to feed a working hunter or a growing pup. And it's the best way to condition the dog who does his "work" on the show-bench.

The following was sent for the newsletter by two members who attend a seminar on how to plan to provide for care of your pets after you are gone.

PROVIDING FOR PETS AFTER YOU ARE GONE

The following subjects will be discussed and samples of pertinent documents will be distributed:

1. Informal arrangements may be utilized such as oral requests, but many times such informality fails to provide for vet bills, food, shelter and future disposition.
2. The use of Wills or Trusts should be explored to allocate assets, appoint trusted individuals to carry out our affairs, avoid taxes and provide for a less costly administration of the estate, whether providing for our pets or not.
3. Dogs generally cannot be beneficiaries without someone appointed to administer property or money left to them by the testator (the person making the Will or Trust).
4. Utilization of a Trust allows an individual to leave property to a pet beneficiary, but places someone else called a Trustee, in charge of managing it, and doling out money for the care of the animal. Thus, the options for a pet owner are as follows: (i) Ignore the issue; (ii) Create a provision to state who gets your pets; (iii) Create a provision for who gets your pets plus a fee to care for them; or (iv) Create a provision for who gets your pets and create a pet Trust, providing for 4expenses, Trustee's commissions, and care and maintenance.
5. If you ignore the subject completely, every Will has a clause to deal with tangible personal property, and since pets are considered personal property, your pets will pass to the people who you name to receive property in your Will. Without direction, there is not posthumous control.
6. Ignoring the subject may work for married persons or people with adult children and/or persons, who trust the executor of their estate to find a good home for the pet, without specifically providing same. The second option would be to provide a provision as to, where the pet will go. In this instance, you would name a caretaker, but in doing so, you need to assume that the caretaker has the resources to care for the pet.
7. In this instance, it would be best to have a sit-down discussion on the topic with the individual or persons, so appointed.
8. The third option is to state specifically who gets your pet, plus money. This option is appropriate to ensure that the pet goes to a certain caretaker, ensure that the caretaker will have resources to care for the animal and lastly provides money for the various expenses involved.
9. The fourth option is to add a provision to state exactly who gets the dog and develop a pet Trust. Here, the Testator, the person making the Will, names the person or shelter who gets the pet and wishes to ensure that there are appropriate resources for the pet's continued existence.
10. The caretaker and Trustee may be the same, or they may be different. The Trust would be an adjunct to the Will, treat the pet as property, institute a Trust naming a Trustee and an Alternate Trustee, if the first person is unable to serve. Any specifics can be set forth including the diet, name of veterinarian, the amount of money to be expended, whether the Trustee will be paid and any other advice or information to provide details of the Trust.

VIII.

TRUSTS

1. A Testamentary Trust, is a Trust that is contained in the Will. There is also a Revocable Trust. A good thing about a Revocable Trust is that there exists quick access to the money, no need for Inheritance Tax Waivers, and it avoids both probate and the trustee process. Inter-Vivos trusts may also be used during one's lifetime to care for pets.

2. Income tax issues for pet Trusts are evident. A Trust can be taxed as a simple or complex Trust. The IRS considers a pet Trust as complex. This means that the Trust is taxed on the net amount earned by the Trust. The total income tax rates for Trusts are very high. In 2019, 37% kicks in at $12,750.00. There is also likely to be a New Jersey income tax as high as 10.75%. These are considerations to be made when you discuss this with your attorney or accountant.

IX. INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS

1. Pet owners are legally entitled to the money earned from the name, likeness of images of their pets, thus, as part of your Will or Trust, if you have a pet that continues to reap royalties after the pet owner dies, to whom do those monies go? If the pet is still earning money from an intellectual property rights contract, a Trust is very likely appropriate. Lassie is an example.
2. One should consider special planning if a business entity has been created to manage the intellectual property rights.
3. To many of you who are breeders, stud fees create similar issues to a pet having intellectual property rights.
